

IndieFlix CEO Scilla Andreen | Biography

Scilla Andreen is the CEO & Co-Founder of IndieFlix, a next generation film distribution company founded in 2005 to help independent filmmakers take advantage of new media and connect with their audience.

An award-winning producer, director, Emmy-nominated costume designer and creator of Film Festival in a Box, Scilla has deep roots in the entertainment industry. She is a popular speaker, juror and tireless champion of independent film.

In 2005, after a successful stint in Hollywood, this mother of two kids packed her bags and moved back to her hometown of Seattle to embark on a new career. After connecting with long time friend and filmmaker Carlo Scandiuzzi, Scilla decided to turn the Hollywood movie industry upside down by changing the way films are distributed and by allowing filmmakers to keep the rights to their movies and receive a majority stake in all revenue streams.

With over 2,500 films from countries around the globe in its ever-expanding collection for viewing or purchase, IndieFlix has launched the fun new interactive game Film Festival in a Box, so that people can experience some of the best independent films in the world without leaving home.
